JACKSON, MISS.

TUESDAY EVENING, JANUARY 27.

OUR PETERS FOREIGN POLICY. The message of Presiden: Davis has now been before the public a sufficient length of time to have elicited very general comment as to its applicability to the times. It has been read, extensively. No th and Sonta, and is now about being presented to the European publie And, as public expectation in every quarter looked. to'll for so exposition of the present situation of the government Mr. Davis represents, as well as declarations indicative of its future policy, the great interest with which it was looked for has subsided into an expression of approval or disapproval, and the public verdict is now made us. Of course, so far as expressions have reached us, they are meatly from the press and people of the Confederacy, consequently approbatory, The few reviews from the North, although from winin the South only find fan't because he emitted to dis. cuss some questions deemed important; in the Northit is admitted to be an able conment, arguing the positions. assumed with eleveness, and as the New York Herald the world;" but then -- it is a rebal document.

Europe must be interested in the manner in which the blockade and interposition questions are presented | the for, These are questions, in the first place, in which the operatives of several powers were as dependent upon a supply, fagunfacture and consumption of our staple for the ability to accure their necessities, as were the producers with us to accomplish their purposes. They were blockeded as well as we of the South. And their g wernmonts were also interested. Out off as they were from the usual revenue arising from the trade they bul enjoyed to alturat a monopoly, not only was their lucous decrined and their commerce diminished but they were still are now compelled to make expen dictres to preserve the flyos of their starving thousand who are out of employment. The discussion of the cause of all this detengement must attract attention abroad. Foreign powers assume avoid the lasts as presented by the President, via ; that the law of extions as enunciated by the Treaty of Paris in 1850, in the most solemn manner by a conclave, of representatives from the principal European Cable-ts, which the Confederacy months ago formally acknowledged to the same extent as the government of our enemy had does. has been rendered insperative so far as the infant Confederation a concerned. It is clearly shown how the rules of blockade have been worled from all former understanding of them to comply with the wishes of the - Washington cablnet, while every demand for our sim ple rights were dure garded. The manner in which this subject is treated cannot fall to comma d a tention, if not produce a convi-fish that every acknowledged prin ciple upon the point discussed has been violated.

The importance given to this subject in the morange convinces as not only that our former efforts to obtain our rights, and all our labors abroad have been In value but also that the Provident Is not disposed to press claims he so clearly establishes any further, at present. He has jo tifled the policy of his country, and now he propiests to cense combatfled with the pre-udies of foreign, powers-to say to them, go year

We think it will not and consequently urge our people to helid no hopes upon such aid for de delade ourselves by entertaining a hope watch, though faint at first will a turally grow into a belief? We eannot shut our eyes to the fact that inveterate preindices are entertained against us on account of our social system, nor forg t that these are entertained as strongly in London as in Rosson. Have we, then, reason to hope i On the contrary, does not the President evidently intend to hereafter roly upon other causes and agencies that those we have heretofore expected to assist us in Eu

Congress, as tru have remarked, has already evinced a disposition to inderse the views of the Executive, and It is to be hoped it will be done. It has been shown to be necessary for the maintenance of public respect, and the press and the people Assand it shall be done. Let us be done with the diplomatic gamesters who have been willing with us. Recall our agouts from descing attendance moon them, as I let them understand at one we are no longer supothers. If any policy will conwince them of their dependence upon us, this will, and It was force from them, from interest, the rights then have withheld through projudice. It will also teach empeople to place greater could upe in the meetves, and call forth spertisor equal to every smergency. We do not deem it prodent to create bopes doubtful of realization, but would rather incolcate self-reliance. It is our safest policy-let our people adopt it.

Preventence, January Sch .- For more than a week past a panic has prevailed among the limited popable built, reluciant to abundon many hallowed associations and pleasant resollections. Each succeeding day has been marked by applications to the common ing officer for transportation for their furniture as other effects, to places of security, which have her granted with all the promptions compatible with the algencies of the service. This punic, at the tinous o be without foundation, is warranted by recent de-matrations on the center, as well as the right and h onstrations on the center, as well as the right and lef wing, of the enemy fronting us on the opposite side of the Rappahannock. A report reached here yesterfar, from below, that the indications brokes quarter are sel as if they intended to make an attempt to cross at once while they are said to be no less decid d above. Their conter has been more quiet.

Yesterday, they were eliging pits for mortar batter.
